Montana Forest Wildfire Project Gets 9th Circ.'s Blessing

The Ninth Circuit on Thursday gave the go-ahead to the U.S. Forest Service's plan to reduce the wildfire threat in Montana's Gallatin National Forest, overruling environmentalists' arguments that the project would imperil the threatened Canada lynx. Read more »

DC Circ. Weighs 'Perfectly Neutral' EPA Reason In Bias Row

A D.C. Circuit judge on Thursday signaled rough terrain ahead for a former Environmental Protection Agency manager who is accusing the EPA of age discrimination and retaliation, with the judge noting the agency has a "perfectly neutral" explanation for a reorganization the former manager alleges was retaliatory.
